

Auto-Login question

This thread is archived Gaston Dombiak 45 posts since

Sep 26, 2001

Hi,

I just don't get the auto-login feature. What is the idea of the auto-login? I thought that this feature would prevent the user of having to type user and password each time he/she tries to login to the site. But `SkinUtils.logout()` deletes the cookie each time the user logs out. Therefore, the only way to achieve an auto-login (the way I want) is to close the browser in the middle of the session instead of performing a log out.

What is the idea of this feature?

Thanks,

-- Gato

Matt Tucker 3,658 posts since

Jun 28, 2001 1. Re: Auto-Login question Nov 25, 2001 7:09 PM

Gato,

Yes, clicking logout removes the cookie. The idea is that you simply wouldn't log-out (but would if you decided to turn off auto-login, etc). What we should probably do is go to a special page when the user clicks log-out that explains what will happen if auto-login is turned on.

Auto-Login question

Do you have another suggestion?

Thanks,

Matt

Gaston Dombiak 45 posts since

Sep 26, 2001 2. Re: Auto-Login question Nov 26, 2001 6:21 PM

Matt,

I like the idea of the explanation before logging out. May be something nice to have is a kind of "Remember me" like www.avantgo.com does for user that prefer to log out.

Regards,

-- Gato

PS: Nice work!!!