The ability of a person to attach files to a blog seems to have disappeared. I have no idea when this started happening or if it is related to the recent upgrade to 2.5.3. I've checked permissions, but I don't seem to see a permission for "Create blog attachment." We use this feature quite extensively, so please let me know as soon as possible how to fix this.

Is this a system / personal blog or a blog that's associated with a community? Can I see the root permissions (if it's the former) or the community permissions? Blog attachment rights are associated with the 'Create Document Attachments' permissions, so that might have been revoked.

Yes, I figured this out on my own. It is resolved now, thanks!
