Hello,

When I select Browse>People, I see the following in this order vertically one-by-one (not side-by-side):

Results (1,089)

<followed by rows of icons showing different members

Recent Activity for these people

<followed by a long list>

<input box> "search people" pushbutton

Filter this List

<box with ability to filter by different criteria>

Browse People display buggy in IE 6.0.x?

As I said: this is the exact order I see these components stacked vertically on the page.

When I started using the function I thought it was incredible un-user friendly because I expected a search feature up top. I asked a co-worker and she doesn't see the same thing ... she sees search/filter to the right of the results. That is what I would have expected.

I am using IE 6.0.x and she was on firefox so I have a feeling this is a browser bug. Can you check it out?

We are running Clearspace 2.5.2 and Jive hosts it.

thanks,

Laura

Hello Laura,

Would you mind attaching a screenshot of the page in both IE 6 and Firefox? I'm not seeing an issue on my local instance using IE 6 (perhaps I am overlooking something).

I think you need to see on our jive-hosted version. Might be related to a customization?

Hey Laura,

Browse People display buggy in IE 6.0.x?

This looks like a bug in the custom theme. I've forwarded this along to the Professional Services team to take a look into the matter, we'll have an update for you when we identify/resolve the issue. Thanks for being so patient,

~Long

Hey Laura,

This issue appears to be resolved (I just tested the People's page on IE 6 and everything appears to behave as expected). Can you please verify?
